BISHOP RESTARICK'S SERMON BRINGS MANY RESPONSES

Many responses were made yesterday evening at the Christian Extension meeting to Bishop Restarick's invitation for all present to acknowledge Christ as their Master.

"Don't go out of this place before you resolve that I will make Christ my Master," said the Bishop. "Use the cards in the hymn books which have been placed there for you to fill out. They are the only means we have to urge you to come. We didn't want to resort to the old 'stand up and about' methods, and so these cards were placed in the seat for your use."

"Talk to some one of these ministers. God knows we are imperfect enough, but we have made a science of the study of the soul and in a way may be called experts in the study of Christianity."

Over twenty-five of these cards were filled out and signed by persons, most of whom signified their desire to talk with some minister.

Bishop Restarick's sermon was on
"Who Is Your Master?"

It was a short sermon, delivered with the feeling and earnestness that have long been characteristics of the Bishop's sermons. In his discourse he made an appeal to the city to arouse from its lethargy, its worldly indifference, and to acknowledge Christ as its Master.

The hymns last night were especially well chosen for a meeting of this sort and consisted of old favorites such as "Lead, Kindly Light," "Come Thou Almighty King," "Work, for the Night Is Coming," "Stand Up for Jesus," and "My Faith Looks Up to Thee."

This evening's discourse will take up the subject of "The First Step." Mr. Butler has arranged a special musical program.

HUMOROUSLY

he was tax assessor? How was it that he accepted a valuation of the Cummins property at $90,000 when he was tax assessor and now comes in here and says the same property is worth more than $170,000?

"It seems strange to me that, according to Mr. Pratt's own testimony the business community has not yet discovered his value as a real estate expert. Mr. Pratt admits that he has been called upon but very infrequently to appraise property in Honolulu. The only time he is used is when there is a condemnation suit on. Then Mr. Pratt is used by the owners of the property."

Breckons paid his most sarcastic compliments to Elmer L. Schwarz-berg, another of the respondent's experts.

"Mr. Schwarzberg," he said, "is a real estate expert, though, strange to say, his towering genius does not seem to have been discovered by the business community. His nine years' experience as a grocery clerk with Hackfeld & Company undoubtedly fitted him to act as a real estate expert, but the only time his services seem to be in demand is when there is a condemnation suit on hand."

"With the magic wand of his fancy Mr. Schwarzberg erected at the corner of Fort and Merchant streets a towering skyscraper. It was equipped with elevators and janitors and fire escapes and all the other appliances of the modern skyscraper. And it was filled with busy lawyers standing off their cruel landlords, with hard-hearted bankers, plutocratic sugar factors.
This great monument to Mr. Schwarzberg's ability was to be financed by a group of San Francisco capitalists.
Mr. Schwarzberg erected this magnificent building—on paper. And then along came Castle & Cooke and leased the premises and the building crumbled. The San Francisco capitalists could find no other place in all Honolulu whereupon to erect their skyscraper and they packed up and left."

"Now the lawyers are busy in other places trying to stand off their landlords; the frenzied brokers do business on the same old curbs; the sugar factors are struggling in such dilapidated buildings as that of H. Hack-feld & Co., away down on Queen street out of town, to keep from losing the management of their plantations. And Mr. Schwarzberg's massive intellect seems to have remained undiscovered by the business men of Honolulu—until he is wanted to testify in a condemnation suit."

Dismissing Schwarzberg, Breckons proceeded to go into the figures given by the various experts and analyze them. He excused the conflicting statements made by Tax Assessor Wilder on the ground that Wilder had only three hours in which to prepare a statement for Governor Frear as to the value of the Mahuka site property, whereas Reidford had three weeks. He called Arthur Neely the best witness who had testified in the case.

Of course, the efforts of the opposing attorneys are devoted principally to trying to persuade the jury that the weight of the testimony leans their respective ways. The jury will probably have a chance this afternoon to deliberate as to its verdict and it is possible that the verdict may be returned some time today.

Yesterday afternoon R. B. Anderson spoke for nearly two hours on behalf of his clients, Castle & Cooke. He analyzed in great detail the figures given by the various experts and insisted that the valuations given by the experts for the respondents were the proper ones and should be so regarded by the jury.

ALLOTMENTS

Once the board has settled the values, there will be no chance of getting the treasurer or the tax assessors to change the figures. The only thing possible is a protest to the tax appeal courts.

The board took up several small matters this morning, and will dissolve on Monday. The country assessors will be returning to their island homes on Tuesday.

On the two-thirds of one per cent basis, each of the other islands will receive the following amounts: Maui, $235,259.18; Hawaii, $256,994.20, and Kauai, $137,490.96. Each county is to get two-thirds of one per cent of its total assessment.
